Harvard Wins.

By Associated Press.]
NEW LONDON, June 26.—The boat race to-day between the Yale and Harvard crews was won by the latter by eleven lengths. Time, Harvard, 21:23; Yale, 21:57.

LATER.—The sixth annual four-mile eight-oared straight-away race between Yale and Harvard's University crews was rowed this noon over the Thames course from Winthrop Point to Gate's Ferry, and was won by Harvard in eleven lengths. Time, 21:23; Yale's, 21:57.

Harvard's victory is the biggest surprise in college athletics for many years. Good judges of rowing conceded the race to Yale almost to a man, and so strong was this sentiment in favor of Yale that stacks of money left at the post-race were uncovered, even at odds of 10 to 60.

Harvard took the lead at the start and forged ahead with a rush. As their shell went ahead their crimson supporters on the observation train and innumerable steamers became frantic with excitement. As the excitement spread, some very reckless work was done by steamboat captains. That there were two collisions and no serious results is simply a matter of good luck. Two miles up the river the tugboat Gypsy ran into the side of the press-boat Shock, throwing twenty-five or thirty people off their feet. At the finish, where the channel was crowded with all sorts of crafts, the Press boat, in trying to avoid a collision with the Rhode Island, struck the tug America, knocking many people sprawling over the decks; fortunately no one was injured. The scenes at the finish were of the most exciting character, Harvard men being wild with joy, while thousands of Yale supporters were decidedly crestfallen over their unexpected defeat. The scenes along the river were of an unusually brilliant and lively character. An observation train of 35 cars carried an immense crowd, while at least 75 steamers, steam and sail yachts followed the crews over the course or were anchored in desirable positions. Favorable places along the west bank were also crowded with eight seers. Promptly at 11:30 the crews came down the river toward the stake boats. Harvard backed into position a minute later and Yale soon after.

When the crews were given the word Harvard caught first, and, setting a fast stroke of 40, at once pushed the bow of their boat slightly in front, while Yale started with 38 strokes. For a few strokes both crews caught the swell and splashed quite badly, then, settling down, each crew gave a pretty exhibition of rowing, Harvard's, however, clearly sending their boat along at a better speed than they have ever shown in practice, and were gradually creeping away from Yale. Yale's work, on the other hand, was much inferior to that seen in their daily practice. At the half-mile Harvard led by a clear length. All during the second half, Harvard continued to gain. Here the steamers crowded in on the boats and the swell caused both to do some ragged work for a few strokes. Nearing the mile flag Harvard increased her lead to nearly three lengths. From the mile to the mile and a half, Harvard continued to gain and it became a question of how many lengths Harvard would defeat Yale. In the next half Harvard, by strong and steady work, increased the lead to nearly six lengths. Yale's boat continued to settle and hang, and it was now a procession. Just after passing the navy yard, the tug, Cassie, got squarely into Harvard's course and they were obliged to make a wide swerve. Yale, however, profited by this incident, and Harvard, getting back into their course, continued to widen the gap between their boat and Yale. At two and one-half miles Harvard gained an additional three lengths, and after passing three and one-half miles, they had a good lead of ten lengths.

After passing the three and a half mile flag both crews settled down for a final spurt and here again Harvard showed superiority in every way over the New Haven crew. Both crews were doing excellent work, but the Harvard shell continued to show a steady gain and they passed the five-mile mark with a minute, while Yale, eleven lengths behind, rowed 37. Harvard's crew rowed at once to their quarters and Yale paddled up to Yale's ferry. The Officials were: Referee, William A. Melkelham of Columbia; Judges, Lawrence E. Sexton of Harvard and Bob Cook of Yale; Timbers, Charles F. Adams of Harvard and George Andee of Yale.

Right of Search.

By Cable and Associated Press.]
PARIS, June 26.—The debate on the Brussels anti-slavery act was resumed in the Chamber yesterday. Pion maintained that French plenipotentiaries at the Brussels Congress virtually receded to the right to search, thus violating the glorious traditions of France. The Chamber ought not to permit the French government to cast themselves at the feet of Great Britain and Germany. [Cheers.] Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs, suggested that the bill be referred back to the government, which was agreed to.

Special to the Gazette.]
SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The ship Palestine, from Tacoma, struck on the bar this morning and sunk. The crew was saved.

The Palestine, which was commanded by Captain McCartney, was a vessel of four hundred tons, and was nine days out from Tacoma, with twenty-five hundred tons of coal for the Southern Pacific Company. A big hole was knocked in her bottom and she sank an hour after striking, in thirteen fathoms of water; only the tops of her masts are now visible. As soon as it was seen that she must go down, Captain McCartney ordered the boats lowered, and all on board, twenty-one in number, embarked safely, as the sea was quite calm at the time and the weather clear. The tug Wizard towed the ship-wrecked sailer into harbor.

The ship was insured for $15,000 in the Firemans Fund Company, and this is understood to be the only risk on the vessel, which was valued at $450,000. The cargo of twenty-five hundred tons of coal, valued at $10,000, is uninsured.

Before he could get aboard again the schooner drifted in shore, struck bottom and was soon foundered to pieces, and is a total wreck. The boat was owned by G. P. Gifford of this city and was valued at $3,600; no insurance. Captain Culnanne reached shore safely.

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

A Man Horribly Mangled Last Night.

At the depot last night about 10:30 o'clock as the wheel-tapper, James Mitchell, was performing his duties tapping the wheels of train No. 9, he was startled at finding the body of a man lying under the train just east of crossing at Lake street. The body was removed and life was not yet extinct, but when Dr. Bergstein arrived it was too late to render any service, as the man was breathing his last. Both legs from the knees down were fearfully mangled and torn. He was trying to ride a brake-tread, and in the act of jumping on, he missed his footing and being between the cars was dragged along and had his limbs torn from him while trying to extricate himself. An inquest was held this afternoon by Coroner Peers, and from the testimony of two strangers, A. H. McGloone and John Wilson, the following was elicited: The name of the deceased was George Beale, a sailor for 21 years, and about 45 years old. McGloone testified that he, with Wilson and Feals, had traveled from Sacramento together, having their way on the trains, and were in the way of Winnemucca, and from there to Paradise valley to engage in haying. That when Beale was last seen about dusk last evening he was under the influence of liquor. He further testified that Beale was a native of London and has a child living in Adelaide, Australia; and that he also has a brother-in-law, who is a hotel-keeper at a sailing riding house at the corner of Fifth and Montgomery streets, San Francisco. With these facts before them the jury found a verdict, that deceased, George Beale met his death by being run over by freight train No. 9; and exonerating the Southern Pacific Co. from all blame.

THE COMSTOCK BOY.

"Bless the Lambs, They Will Steel, But They Won't Lie." John Barclay, foreman of the Nevada mill at Virginia City, missed two flasks of quicksilver yesterday afternoon, and after a search, found them hidden away under the tailings settled. At night he put himself on watch and about 9 o'clock detected two boys making for the cache and ordered them to surrender. They, however, started to run, and he fired with a shotgun and landed a load of buckshot into the calf of the leg of one named Willie Hanftin, aged about 18. The other boy, Jake King, escaped because the gun didn't go when he pulled the trigger. The Enterprise says: The workmen around the Nevada mill have been annoyed beyond endurance by the depredations of the boys who have gathered around the mill as late as night as 1 and 2 o'clock to the number of 20 or 30, all waiting for a chance to nip candles, powder, oil, etc.

A Coinage Question.

The meeting of the Cabinet today promises to be one of interest to the people of the nation and especially so to the people of the West, and silver-producing States. The situation is quite clearly presented by the following from the San Francisco Bulletin:

It is understood that the Cabinet will devote its attention to the question of the further coinage of silver. The law passed by the last Congress provided for the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver each month, to be paid for in Treasury notes prepared for the purpose, and for the coinage of 2,000,000 ounces of those purchases monthly into standard silver dollars until the 1st of July, 1891. After that date the law provides that so many dollars shall be coined as may be necessary for the redemption of the Treasury notes provided for by the bill. The monthly purchase of silver will go on as before independently of silver dollar coinage.

The question of continuing the coinage is thus made one of judgment. Most of the silver dollars already coined remain in the Treasury and are represented in circulation by silver certificates. According to the latest figures there have been coined 404,575,715 silver dollars, of which 343,004,448 are lying in the Treasury vaults, but are represented in circulation by silver certificates, and latterly by some of the new Treasury notes. So far as public use is concerned there would seem to be no necessity for coining much of the bullion purchased by the new notes. There has been but little demand for the redemption of silver certificates and there may be as little for that of the new notes. A prudent banker, however, maintains a stock of coin on hand sufficient to meet any payable demand for the redemption of his notes. Of course the bullion purchased by the new notes is in the Treasury. Should the market price of silver go up this bullion would be worth considerably more than the notes issued in payment thereof. Should it go down it would be worth less as bullion, but, coined into dollars, it would always be current money for at least the face of the notes, because the law forbids the purchase of bullion at more than the rate of $1 for 371.25 grains of pure silver, the amount in the standard dollar. The question for the Government to consider is, therefore, as to the probable demand for redemption of the silver Treasury notes now being issued. Some New York bankers favor stopping coinage. Public opinion, so far as it shows itself in communications received by the Treasury Department, favors the continuance of coinage. Ordinary banking practice would seem to indicate the prudence of coining say one-third of the monthly purchases of bullion, to provide for redemption or any further demand for silver dollars.

The platform the Iowa State Democratic Convention indulges in the usual platitudes against Republican policy, but its plank against the McKinley bill is peculiar. It denounces the motives of the authors and defenders of the bill and the theory under which it is submitted to the people. It does not, however, seem to find any well-grounded objection in fact to the bill. The Republican party does not care how much the theory of its policy is opposed so long as its facts are all right. It seeks the practical welfare of the American people, not the development of any economic theory. It leaves that to closet professors and free traders.

HONOLULU is again filled with rumors of a popular uprising, and the Government is taking unusual precautions to prevent a revolt. The cheapest way for the Queen to clear the political atmosphere is to give official positions to the chief malcontents which will take them outside the kingdom. As long as these intrigues remain in Hawaii the Queen will behold the sword of Damocles hanging over her head, for she can never be assured of retaining the throne.

MAN-EATING GIANTS OF SERI.

Stories of a Horrible People Living on an Island in the Gulf of California.

"There are one hundred and seventy-four giant cannibals, men and women, living on Seri Island, in the Gulf of California, and not sixty miles from the mainland of Mexico," said George G. McNamara to a San Francisco Examiner reporter recently.

"What I say might seem ridiculous, but it is nevertheless a fact, for I have seen some of them during my travels in Mexico. Who their ancestors were or how long they have occupied the island is not known, but they are now becoming extinct.

"I saw three women and one man, and their appearance and manner gave me the impression that they are brutes by nature and brutes in heart and soul. It was just by chance that I saw them, as few of them venture away from the island except to sell the mats and shawls which they make from the skins and feathers of the albatross. They are cunning thieves, but otherwise their minds are dull—in fact, they seem stupefied. They have a vacant stare in their eyes, and, when not serious, an idiotic smile spreads over their faces.

"The island of Seri is about twenty miles long and at places ten miles wide, and I was told no Mexican or white man ever ventures near or attempts to land on it, as they claim the island is their domain and shoot the intruders with poisoned arrows or capture and eat them. They exist on fish and goat meat, which are plentiful. Low houses, built of shrubbery, are their abode. Some live in 'dugouts,' or caves cut into banks. They roam about the island and lead the laziest life of any people that I have ever heard of. No one can really tell what their daily routine of living is, but it is a fact that the tribe is dying out, and that it will not be many years before they will become extinct.

"Their mode of burial is not known, but it is estimated that where there are now a handful there were several thousand not ten years ago, and if they bury the dead and do not burn the bodies, as cannibals do, the bones of their enormous frames will cover a large area of the island.

"The man I photographed is over seven feet in height. His face was a study when he saw the lens pointed at him, and he could not understand what was being done. He, as are all his race, was superstitious, but we overcame that obstacle by giving him a present of an old pair of trousers, which he immediately tied around his neck. The gentleman standing next to him is about six feet tall, and he had to hold the Indian's hand. An old rag encircled the upper portion of the Indian's limbs, and it was tied around the waist. The blanket is made of albatross skin and feathers. The bow and arrows which he holds are the only weapon they know of or use. His legs from the knee down are not covered. The hat he wears is of straw, and he, as he stands there, is the typical Seri Indian.

"The women wear patched dresses made of cloth which they receive for albatross mats and shawls. They are wrinkled and old, very few girls being among the tribe. The bows in their hands contain broken vessels made of clay.

"They are a wonderful people," continued McNamara, "and no doubt their past history, if revealed, will bring to light facts that relate to the magnificent reign of the Montezumas, or even far beyond the time of Cortez."

CATHEDRAL ARCHITECTURE.

How the Great Church of Rome Was Built of Butter.

The cathedral is first found to perfection in the thirteenth century, but it is more elaborate in the fourteenth, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The tenth century was an important epoch in the history of cathedrals. It was the general belief at that time that the end of the world was approaching, and a falling off in building activity is noticed in consequence. After the beginning of the year 1000 A. D. a general sense of relief is shown in the building of new churches. The erection of a church was a convenient means for the expression of thankfulness. The founding of monasteries, especially of the Cistercian order, led also to this phenomenal activity. An illustration of this progressive spirit is seen in the tower of Rouen cathedral, which was built of butter. I mean by that that the people of Rouen, by giving up butter in Lent, paid for it from their savings.

The sculpture of cathedrals, which was so exquisitely carried out in the middle ages, contained a means for teaching the Bible in days when books were almost unknown. This is well shown in the statues of Christ. At that time it was more than a symbol, it was a sign of the living spirit. Then, too, the cathedral was more than a church and was not merely a religious place. It was the center of learning and of the community. Our modern churches have deteriorated, as in the early days, to mere places of worship.

An Immense Procession.

At a recent Hindoo service in Kalighat shrine at Calcutta, two hundred thousand persons took part. Rajahs, zemindars, merchants, shopkeepers, pleaders, professors, graduates and doctors were present, and the Hindoo ladies flocked. Three hundred Brahmins conducted the services, chanting the Vedas. Ten thousand houses were performed for the protection of religion, thousands sang the hymns, and shouts and horrible sounds rent the air, the people seeming mad. Many of them swooned, and one devotee offered his neck, and was prevented.

Suspicious of Electricity.
There has been any amount of correspondence, newspaper controversy and litigation in Japan as to the share played by the electric-light wires in starting the fire which recently consumed the Japanese houses of parliament. Not electric-lighting alone but every method utilizing electricity has become an object of suspicion, the telephone among the rest. Certain folks have been asking experts whether the telephone might not be responsible for a fire one of these fine days, and others want to know whether cholera germs could not be propagated by this subtle instrument as well as the waves of sound.

Winn, Geary Court, San Francisco, and hundreds of others who have used it in constipation. One letter is a sample of hundreds. Elkington writes: "I have been for years subject to bilious headaches and constipation. Have been so bad for a year back have had to take a physic every other night or else I would have a headache. After taking one bottle of J. V. S. I am in splendid shape. It has done wonderful things for me."

Steady Progress

Has characterized Hood's Sarsaparilla ever since it was placed before the public. Wherever introduced, its sales have grown from year to year, until now it is the most popular and most successful medicine offered. Any druggist will confirm this statement. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine of merit. It does actually accomplish all that is claimed for it, and when given a fair trial, is reasonably certain to be of benefit.

Positive Statements.
"Since Hood's Sarsaparilla has been in my hands for sale I have had frequent and unreserved testimonials in its favor. Although carrying this preparation for less than one year, my sales have been greater than of any similar preparation, and the testimonials in its favor are at once positive and personally noticeable." A. WAGNER, Headmaster, Cal.

Sells On Its Merits.
"My boys say, 'Papa, why don't you buy more of Hood's Sarsaparilla at a time; we are always short.' It sells on its own merits." F. BEAR, Portland, Oregon; the oldest druggist in Oregon.

JOINTS.

Miss E. G. Gibbs has received an elegant lot of sample goods—the finest in the millinery line ever exhibited in Reno, which she will sell at prices that will enable all to purchase.

He doesn't like our human laws, nor any human teacher; he doesn't go to church, because he doesn't like the preacher. But he takes lunch and a schooner of beer at Jake Becker's for 15 cents.

They spooned all the live-long summer, commencing early in June; and she merely thanked him at parting for his lovely souvenir spoon. Richard Herz sells them and they are the latest fad.

This is the time of the year when people are willing to say: "God made the country and man made the town." All articles usually found in a first-class stationery store are sold by C. A. Thurston.

Johnny—reading his composition—Every rabbit has four legs and one anecdote. Teacher—What do you mean by an anecdote? Johnny—Short, funny tale, under your wood, or coal and iron of J. F. Atkinson.

Husband—"What was that you were playing, my dear?" Wife—"Do you like it?" "It was exquisite!" "It is the very same thing I was playing last evening and you said it was horrid." "Well, the steak was burned last evening." Board at the Riverside Hotel and keep in a good humor.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved. From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me and I thank God I am now well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at Wm. Pinniger's drugstore, regular size 50 c. and $1.

Good Looks. Good Looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach is disordered you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and Tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures Pimples, Blisters, Boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at Wm. Pinniger's drugstore, 50 c. per bottle.

Well Merited Praise. In almost every neighborhood there is some one or more persons whose lives have been saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, or who have been cured of chronic diarrhoea by it. PACIFIC GROVE.

Sylvan Grove, Spice-laden Breezes Roaring Surf and Whispering Pines. Gazette's Special Correspondent.] PACIFIC GROVE, June 25, '91.

EDITOR GAZETTE: This is a romantic, lovely and healthful resort for men, women and children; a restful and recruiting place for tired and weary ones. The interesting drives, the cool and shady walks, the inspiring ocean breeze, all to entertain, interest and invigorate the seeker for health, recreation or improvement. The Young Men's Christian Association, the young and old people's entertainments the Misses on bicycles, the little love scenes on the sly, all for instruction, entertainment or polity, as your inclination directs. It is, perhaps, as varied in its attractions, and as many creature comforts, as any watering place on the coast.

Changes but little from year to year. The same bay ebbs and flows at four feet; the same pines rustle in the breezes and send forth their perfume through the air; picturesque cottages, surrounded by the most lovely flowers, are on every avenue, street and alley and dot the woods in every direction. Strangers you expect to meet—occasionally you are surprised by a familiar voice and a jovial face. This time 'tis none other than the social, generous Frank Bosovich. "Here with family for a month, and have Alice Tobiner with us." Just as though anything besides Mr. and Mrs. Bosovich and their bright little son was necessary to bring us up with a quick turn to their cottage. Here Mrs. Bosovich received us with a good square Carson reception. Soon all plan a walk to Moss Beach point, only four and one-half miles away, through the woods and over the sand dunes to the sea. We were rejoiced to find Bosovich, who makes a trip through Nevada every sixty days, outspoken for the silver and irrigation champion, Frank G. Newlands, for Nevada's next Congressman. His reasons for advocating Newlands are sound, and will penetrate the mind of many a keen sighted voter before another election.

EACH DAY. In quest of diversion, some incidents are met which attract the attention of all—"She looked like a dream or a gymnastic divinity. She was so pretty and wickedly agile she could have driven chariots for Pharaoh and ensnared the heart of Moses himself, had she caught up with him on your side of the wilderness. It was a charming little blonde sitting astride of a bicycle which spun along at a great pace. She was as lithe as a two-year-old hickory and dressed in blouse waist, loose corset, high collar and natty necktie, using her russet shoes for motor power and her streaming curls for dude teasers, it seemed as if she had wheeled in here expressly to distract the Methodist Conference now in session, since saint and sinner, dude and dominie gazed at the fleeting vision till it disappeared down the brow of the hill, spinning down to Monterey. We had rented a rapture for the occasion ourselves, when a writ of ejectment therefrom was rudely served on us by hearing a pink tie spinster ask her companion "Wonder if the hussy wears the divided skirt." It does seem too downright cruel that a pretty girl can't sit astride of a liver pad saddle in clothes pin style without some envious and to chaste specimen of antique virginity wanting to investigate her underwear." SEA URGIN.

A GENTEEL SLOGGER. Traveling East With Wife and Companion in Luxurious Style. Jim Corbett, the prize-fighter, accompanied by Leonard, the slogger, passed east this morning, going first to Salt Lake, where they are to give a sparring match on Sunday evening. From there they go to Denver, where Corbett is to join Thatcher's Minstrels on their eastern tour, timing his engagements so as to arrive in Minneapolis to witness the coming prize fight. His wife, a handsome blonde, accompanies him. The GAZETTE reporter stood an introduction, and after learning the above facts, which Jim gave in accents as gentle as a cooling dove, ventured to remark that he was really sparring his way east, something a local critic couldn't do. Really Corbett has the appearance of a gentleman, and every action indicates it, for when asked to step over to the Arcade, he quietly said "No, I don't drink."

General Agler Passes. General Russell A. Agler of Michigan, with his traveling companions on his Pacific coast trip, passed Reno this morning in his special car "Michigan," attached to the regular overland train. As the train pulled out the General was seen standing on the rear platform of his car, was quickly recognized by some who knew him, and smiled his acknowledgments. The General looks young, strong and vigorous, and carries himself with a soldierly bearing that marks him a stalwart and reliable member of the old guard.

PICCHE PEDDLERS.

Mormon Victims of Law and Sport in the Free and Easy Times of Long Ago. Picche furnished the first live market for produce that the Mormons of southern Utah ever had, and in the summer of 1872 they drove a lively trade. But they found soon that the trade had many drawbacks, especially when the sheriff was instructed to collect a license from each one offering Utah produce for sale. They soon adopted cunning tactics by camping a few miles out of town and disposing of several wagon loads of produce through one of their number, who would endeavor to make one license serve for all. Then the sheriff grew cunning and appointed a number of deputies, with instructions to scour the woods and collect a town license wherever they caught a Mormon.

THIS WORKED PRETTY WELL. As against them, but did not swell the exchequer of the town any. The collectors were cunning, and instead of using the legal receipts furnished them, they issued bogus ones and pocketed all they got. An exposure followed in due time, when of course the collectors were all let out, but the season was about over and the Mormons escaped a double tax. The exposure came about in a most unexpected manner. Picche was filled with reckless and waggish fellows. One day a Mormon wagon, the bed of which was made into a big coop and loaded with chickens, was slowly passing along Meadow Valley street, when some one opened the rear end door and the chickens began hopping out, and before the owner knew it they were running around the streets, squawking and lodging a yelling, threatening gang of sports, who were scattering them to the four winds of heaven. The owner started in hot pursuit after his RAPIDLY VANISHING PROPERTY. Aided by the sports in a manner that made it all the more difficult. To add to the Mormon's alarm and vexation, the sports drew their revolvers and began a lively fusillade ostensibly at the chickens, but the shots fell so uncomfortably near the Mormon that in alarm and with fear to speed his flight, he abandoned the chase after his chickens and sought the sheriff to invoke the aid of the law. The sheriff coolly asked for his license, when the Mormon produced a bogus one, wrung from him in the woods and signed with a fictitious name. The sheriff could not recognize it and promptly arrested the Mormon for trading without a license. In the meantime the chickens, having all the way from St. George, had, as Jim Eike said, "gone where the woodbine twined"—up the spot, and the Mormon was compelled to remain on expense and hire a lawyer in his defense. The bogus license was evidently bought in good faith, but the Mormon couldn't find the man that issued it. A sympathetic jury acquitted him, and then the lawyer took his team for his services and the innocent and injured Mormon had to start home on foot, robbed and plundered by a chain of unfortunate circumstances that left him no legal redress. But it ended the experiment of keeping a gang of license collectors scouring the woods and canyons to plunder Mormons under the guise of law.

AN INNOVATION. Court Being Held in Battle Mountain. The Central Nevada of the 25th inst. says: For the first time in its history; District Court is being held in Battle Mountain. Judge A. L. Fitzgerald arrived yesterday from Austin and convened Court to obtain depositions in an action entitled New Pacific M. Co., L'd, A. Good, liquidator, vs. Manhattan M. & R. Co. and John L. Beveridge, of Austin. The suit is for $5,000,000 claimed to be due A. Good, a chartered account, of 57 Moogate St., London, for ore extracted by the Manhattan M. Co. from the mining claims of the original Pacific M. Co., L'd, liquidated and reorganized some twenty years ago under the title, New Pacific M. Co., L'd. D. S. Truman, attorney for the plaintiff, is producing telling testimony.

Lake Independence. About one-half ton of trout has been shipped from Lake Independence each week for the past month. A fish hatchery is to be established at the lake which will supply it. The house is being put in order, the table is good and the prospect is bright for a good season at this beautiful summer resort. The road is better than it was last year and people will find it a pleasant place to go for a few days' pleasure.

Landlord's Exchange Lies. Oliver Roberts, the jolly boniface of the Arlington Hotel at Carson and Bellevue at Lake Tahoe, stopped over in Reno last night on his way to Verdi. He called on Chamberlain at the Riverside to consult about a rare bug, a specimen of which he sent to Chamberlain some days ago, which they have decided to submit to the entomologist of the University for classification.

A Merited Compliment.

Miss Megquier, Principal of the School for Girls, received a well deserved compliment from Bishop Leonard upon the successful closing of the past term. The Bishop pronounced her administration a success, and especially so from a financial standpoint. It was well merited, for the school is now in a flourishing condition and gaining in popularity.

A Moonshiner. Battle Mountain people were treated to the rare sight of a lunar rainbow last Friday, a week ago, and the Central Nevada, after painting it red in most approved style, says: Candelaria can keep the earthquakes, Carson, its cloud visages, and Reno, its phenomenal park (?) but Battle Mountain must have its lunar rainbow.

In the Name of the Prophet. Agai cry the vendors of the fruit in Constantinople. Certainly a "great cry over a little wool." Scarcely less foolish is the practice of those who fly to violent physic for costiveness. They dose themselves violently, weaken their bowels by so doing, and disable them from acting regularly, so that, verily, the last condition of such people is worse than the first. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the safe and effective substitute for such vast expedients. But no, let us not call them expedients, for it is by no means expedient to use them. What is needed is a gentle but thorough laxative, which not enures action of the bowels without pain or weakening effects, which also promotes a healthy secretion and flow of bile into its proper channel. Dyspepsia, debility, kidney complaints, rheumatism and malaria give rise to the Bitters.

Spring Fever. At this season of the year the most vigorous and hearty people often have a feeling of weariness, tired and worn out, without ambition to do anything, and many break out in pimples and eruptions. What you require is a mild tonic medicine that will act gently on the liver and blood, and for this nothing equals Dr. Gunn's Improved Liver Pills. They give an activity to the liver, purify the blood and by their mild tonic action, new vitality and strength to the whole system. Sold for 25 cents a box by S. J. Hodgkinson.

Eminent Testimony. Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher writes: "40 Orange St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 11, 1890. "I have used Alcock's Porous Plasters for some years for myself and family, and as far as able, for the many sufferers who came to us for assistance, and have found them a genuine relief for most of the aches and pains which flesh is heir to. I have used Alcock's Porous Plasters for all kinds of lameness and acute pain and, by frequent experiments, find that they can control many cases not noticed by your circulars.

The above is the only testimonial I have ever given in favor of any plaster, and if my name has been used to recommend any other it is without my authority or sanction.

BALLOONING IN CHINA.

Oriental Imitators of an American Aeronaut.

Amusing Incidents of Prof. Baldwin's Exhibitions Among the Mongolians - 11,000 ft. in the Air.

T. S. Baldwin, the aeronaut who recently returned from various oriental expeditions, succeeded in thoroughly ascertaining the Mongolian race by his exhibitions, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

The aeronaut's experiences were generally of the most pleasant kind, for the pigtailed patrons, responded enthusiastically and the novel amusement set all China agog. The attendance at some of the exhibitions in the large seaport cities was enormous. The aeronaut found some difficulty in obtaining suitable places for absorbing the cash of the native populace, for fenced grounds are not to be had, and in most places the inclosure was made by a rope and the assistance of the native police. The Mongolian deadhead has a more wholesome dread of the official guardian of the peace than his American confrere, and few persons ventured inside the roped circle without paying the admission fee. This was ten cents for the outer circle, twenty cents for the intermediate, and two dollars for the inner ring. The aeronaut found the well Chinese perfectly willing to pay this stiff tax. The only trouble was that every pigtailed swell brought a retinue of servants with him, and when a big headman strutted in to see the show the army of retainers, from his teapot bearer to his grand high chamberlain, took up most of the dress circle.

Baldwin gave his first exhibition at Hong Kong, and the native shouts and yells that greeted his ascent were only excelled by the roar of amazement that met his brother when he came flying back to earth with a parachute. In all the towns the balloon proved the greatest attraction ever brought to the Celestial land by the bearded white devils from foreign parts.

Having soon disabused their minds of any lurking belief that the white balloons were possessed of supernatural powers, the Chinese set themselves to work to imitate him. Several adventurous Mongolians broke various portions of their anatomy from their necks to their legs by trying to descend from lofty temples and tall trees with parachutes constructed out of native umbrellas. Toy balloons, constructed with great skill and attention to detail by natives, became part of the stock of the bazaars.

At Foo Chow a native genius constructed a mammoth hot-air balloon, with flaming dragon head and great paper wings, and made an ascension which will be long remembered by his townsmen. Baldwin gave all his exhibitions with hot-air-inflated balloons, that style of inflation being cheapest, quickest and otherwise most acceptable to a skilled aeronaut for such work as was needed. The simple method of expanding the balloon pleased the native imitators, and the Foo Chow genius copied everything to a nicety, except the very important point of how to cut loose at the proper moment without accident. The result was that the balloon, which was of enormous size, shot up with such terrific and unexpected velocity that it carried with it a score or so of the Mongolians who were standing it with the ropes while the aeronaut was getting ready to cut loose.

The great bag of air kept scattering Mongolians over the suburbs of Foo Chow until it turned a regular flip-flop, being improperly balanced, and fell into one of the large ponds in the outskirts of the city. This adventure had a very depressing effect on the native aspirants, but the mania had taken too firm a hold to be eradicated by an ordinary increase of the mortality rate, and when Mr. Baldwin left China for Japan pigtailed aeronauts were regularly soaring through space in various sections of the Celestial empire.

The Japanese took an enthusiastic interest to the sport as the Chinese, and native imitators also appeared in a short time.

A COOL CUSTOMER.

The Ingenious Trick of an English Railway Passenger.
English railways have the very sensible rule that passengers are not allowed to stand in the cars if anyone objects thereto. The following incident of recent occurrence shows that it does not always pay to insist too strongly on one's rights:

"Will you kindly allow me to stand?" asked a gentleman as he got into a railway carriage, which carriage already contained the specified number.

"Certainly not, sir!" exclaimed a passenger occupying a corner seat near the door. "The way these trains are overcrowded is shameful!"

"As you appear to be the only person who objects to my presence," replied the gentleman, "I shall remain where I am."

"Then I shall call the guard and have you removed, sir."

Suiting the action to the word, the aggrieved passenger rose, and, putting his head out of the window, vociferously demanded the guard. The new comer saw his opportunity, and quietly slipped into the corner seat.

"One over the number," said the new comer to the guard, coolly.

"You must come out, sir! the train's going on," and without waiting for further explanation the guard pulled out the aggrieved passenger, who was left wildly gesticulating on the platform.

Old Water-Grates.

There have probably been forty patents in as many years of the water-grate as used on hard-coal burning locomotives and a few that burn soft coal. To those who think that to them belongs the credit for the original idea it may be of interest to look back a few years, the Locomotive Engineer says. At the Museo Borbonico at Naples, Italy, there are carefully preserved many copper and bronze tools and utensils exhumed at Pompeii and among them a small vertical boiler of copper. This has a fire-box and smoke-flue through the top, a door on the side and water-grates composed of small tubes of copper crossing the fire-box at the bottom. Pompeii was destroyed more than eighteen hundred years ago.

THE FIRE DOGS OF NEW YORK.

Bluff, One of the Principal Members of the Fire Department.

The fire dogs of New York deserve mention, says the Illustrated American. Bravery is a very common quality among these active, bright-eyed dogs. Bluff is a typical fire dog. He belongs to Capt. Peaslee, who is justly fond of his big Newfoundland. Bluff has not overcome his bad habit of jumping up and barking at the horses, and looking back at them while running to a fire. This habit causes much anxiety to his master, who has lost two dogs that were run over while indulging in this trick.

He evinces the greatest disgust when his horse companions, the fire laddies, clean the engine house, and when the place is inundated with water and soap suds he abandons his friends and sits on the opposite side of the street, growling, showing his teeth and manifesting his displeasure in a hundred and one disagreeable ways. He goes regularly to one of the large hospitals, which is quite near his engine house, and carries home a small basket of bones for his breakfast. One day, just after the kitchen door had been shut behind him, he heard the alarm sound in the engine house. Dropping his basket, he barked furiously, and jumped up at the door.

The frightened cook, thinking that the dog had gone mad, hastened to open the door just as the engine dashed out of the engine house. Off ran the breakfastless Bluff in hot pursuit. Once at the fire he rushed into one of the rooms of a tenement house, and picking up a baby that lay in its cradle forgotten, carried it down the stairs, his teeth firmly fastened in the child's long clothes. He was hailed with cheers of delight by the firemen, none of whom had seen the child.

Fishing in Ceylon.

Negombo lake, Ceylon, is about four miles in width, and all around us were plying their craft, whose owners were diligently fishing in its quiet waters. They have a curious method of frightening fish into the net, which is held by some of the men, while others wave long fringes of torn plantain leaves or cocoa-palm, similar to those which are hung up as decorations at any festival. The fish thus alarmed are expected to jump upwards. At night the fishers carry a blazing torch downwards, so that the glare is all on the water. The torch consists of a fagot of sticks, and from its center projects a long, sharp knife with which to impale any large fish which is seen resting in the shallows.
